Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.
The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.
With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Following Bigger's Example.

By JAMES REILLY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

Temple slipped off his coat and threw it beside the camera case, with a "Watch it" to the white bulldog that sat gravely at the foot of the tree.

Bigger exhibited his teeth in a smile intended to be pleasant and stretched himself out beside the case on the soft mat of pine needles. The walk to the falls had not tired him, but he was well content to lie on the fragrant carpet and doze and dream of cats on fences that were always low enough to bring the feline prey within his reach and of a succession of canine battles in which he was always the victor. At heart Bigger was a child of peace. It was only in his dreams that his visions were tinged with blood.

Here and there through the woods a locust shrilled and the air was vibrant with the song of birds and the soft hum of insect life. Dick Temple had picked out a clump of pines in which to make his camp, and through the leafy aisles Bigger could command a view of the deeper woods beyond and the little river that wound its way through the forest, marking with a tint of more vivid green the undergrowth along its banks.

Down the wind came the faint roar of falling waters where the stream plunged forty feet over the black stones to dance in very joy at the foot of the falls before taking up its course to the river beyond.

Temple had long ago exhausted the photographic possibilities of the falls and departed in the direction of downstream, but the footfalls that roused Bigger from a dream of conquest came from the other way, and Bigger looked up just as the sunlight glinted upon the golden hair and the scarlet coat of a slender girl who under other circumstances would have excited Bigger's entire approval.

From the crown of the golden head to the tip of the dainty russet shoe she was a patrician, one of Bigger's very own sort. If there were bench shows for humans, surely she must be possessed of as many blue ribbons as there were in his own particular cabinet at home.

This being the case, it seemed strange to Bigger that she should share in common with the trampish characters a desire for his master's property, and he emitted a low growl of polite warning.

The girl came steadily forward until she was almost within reach of those powerful jaws; then she paused.

"You are a very bad dog," she scolded gently. "It is very dear of you to keep guard over those things, but don't you know they are not yours to guard!"

Bigger made vigorous dissent to this sentiment, but the girl went on.

"You see," she explained, "Reggy wants those extra plates before the light gets away. I am afraid you are not going to let me have them."

She moved easily toward the case, talking in the same steady voice, and her hand was already upon the holders when Bigger's teeth set firmly in her skirt.

Had it been a tramp Bigger would have sprung at his throat, but he knew that there was some mistake, and he sought only to hold the girl until his master should have come up to accept her explanations. The girl regarded him hopelessly.

"You're a bad, wicked dog," she scolded, "to make so much trouble. When Reg comes I shall have him whip you, and he will come. He is too anxious to wait long for me. Please let me go."

She made a movement to disengage herself, but Bigger growled again, and this time there was a deeper note that warned her that resistance would be met with greater force. She sank helplessly back upon the springy, odorous carpet of nature and settled herself more comfortably.

"I shall have to wait for Reggie," she said, "and he'll be really angry at you if you spoil his chance of getting that view. He's going back to town tomorrow, and he will not have another opportunity."

Bigger preserved a discreet silence. He was too gallant to argue a point with a woman. As long as she remained quiet he had nothing to say. For half an hour she sat there in silence broken only by the chatter of the squirrels and the hum of the summer noises; then there was a crashing sound in the underbrush, and Bigger pricked up his ears, while the girl roused herself to listen.

"Here I am, Reggie!" she called. "Under the pines by your camera. There's a horrid dog here, and he won't let me go."

A loud, clear whistle sounded, but Bigger only growled a protest against obedience and clung to his captive. A moment later Temple burst through the alders that fringed the stream. The girl's face turned crimson.

"If this is your dog," she said, with dignity, "will you kindly call him off? He has kept me a prisoner here for almost an hour, and my brother is waiting for these plates."

"Possibly the dog appreciates the fact that I should need them myself," he said, with a laugh and a sign to Bigger, who released his prisoner and stalked with dignity across to Temple. "You see," he went on, "they happen to be my plates."

He knelt on the ground to shift the used holders to a compartment of the case and change the new ones to a sling carrier across his shoulders. The girl stared at him in astonishment, and he, guessing her thoughts, looked up.

"Permit me to introduce myself," he said, holding up the case. She read the name "Richard Temple" on the silver plate and blushed in confusion.

"My brother, Mr. Storms, has the same sort of case," she explained. "He sent me for more plates, and I thought that these were his and that the dog had strayed."

"Storms?" he said musingly. "You must be Miss Mildred Storms, who is staying over at the Beechman farm?"

The girl nodded, and Temple smiled. "I think I can solve the mystery," he said. "You took the wrong road from the falls. Had you turned to the left instead of the right you would have come to a very similar clump of pines, where, no doubt, your brother's case lies. You can't blame Bigger, can you?"

"He is a dear old faithful," she declared, with forgiveness. "And a perfect gentleman," she added. "He would not bite. He just held me until you came to explain the mistake. I should like to know him better."

"With your permission we will call," he suggested. "Your brother and I belong to the same camera club in town. I did not know that you were his sister. I can take you a short cut to the other clump of pines, and we'll take the plates to him."

Storms was kneeling over his case as they came up.

"I came and got the plates," he explained when their own explanation had been offered and proper introductions accomplished. "I knew you couldn't get very far away, and I did want that picture with the light on the wet rocks. Come over this evening, Temple, and I'll show you my negatives. I go back to town in the morning."

Temple took Bigger over to call that evening and many evenings thereafter. Mildred became his assistant in his photographic trips, but now Bigger only smiled amiably when she came after the plates. It was while they were eating lunch the last day of Temple's stay that she patted the dog's white head and looked up.

"Do you know," she said, "I think that dogs take after their masters."

"As you early gave Bigger a certificate of good character, I feel flattered," he said, with a laugh.

"But I do think so," she insisted.

"Sometimes their masters take after the dogs," he insisted. "Now, when I first saw you Bigger had fast hold of you."

"I don't see what you mean," she said, with a puzzled knitting of the brows.

"Like Bigger, I want to hold on to you," he said as he possessed himself of her hand, "only I want to keep you forever. May I, dear?"

The answer must have been "Yes," for an engagement ring in the form of a dog collar adorns the proper finger.

Lincoln's Reason.

One afternoon when Lincoln was president word came to the war department from the provost marshal at Portland, Me., that Henry Jameson, the Confederate secret service agent, was on his way to New York, where he had engaged passage for England. The war department was at once all astir.

Charles A. Dana, then assistant secretary of war, received the message and hastened at once to consult with Secretary of War Stanton, says the Ladies' Home Journal.

"How do you advise me to act in this matter?" queried Dana.

"Arrest the man at once," was Stanton's reply; "but you had better see the president before you proceed further."

Dana went immediately to the White House. As he was a frequent visitor he was readily admitted to Lincoln's private room.

"What is it, Dana?" asked the president as the secretary came in.

Dana told about the incident and asked the president what ought to be done.

"Well," was the quiet reply, "you say Jameson will soon leave the country?"

"Yes, sir; he will escape within a few hours if nothing is done to stop him. My purpose is to arrest him."

"Well," was the president's reply, "when you have a white elephant on your hands and he's doing his level best to get away, why not leave him alone, Dana?"

And Jameson was let alone.

The "Six Hundred Ruffians."

On Feb. 23, 1838, Lord Maidstone called the attention of the house to a speech delivered by O'Connell at a political dinner in London in which he asserted that the Tory election committee of the day—or the committees appointed by the house to try election petitions, a practice which has since been abolished—had stooped to "foul perjury" in order that their friends might retain their seats. A vote of censure on O'Connell, which was moved by Lord Maidstone, was carried by a majority of nine.

A few days later a curious scene was witnessed in the house. O'Connell had to stand up in his place in the crowded chamber while the speaker, James Abercromby, solemnly reproved him for "the false and scandalous imputation" he had cast upon "the honor and conduct of members of the house. It now only remains," said the speaker in conclusion, "that in obedience to the commands of this house I should reprimand you, as I now accordingly do."

The reprimand, however, made no impression upon O'Connell. "I have repented of nothing, I have retracted nothing," said he in the course of a speech he delivered when the speaker resumed his seat, and he concluded by moving a committee before which to prove his charges. He subsequently described the house of commons in a speech delivered outside as "six hundred ruffians."

Our Summer Outing.

[Original.]

I dread the coming round of the vacation season. All the world takes its vacation in July and August, and to secure rooms one must set about it when the beautiful snow is waltzing. Then you must fix your thoughts on forest or field, mountain or ocean, when you would prefer to stay at home and snuggle up to the fire. If you don't act then, when the thermometer stands at 97 degrees in the shade you must stay at home and roast.

Molly loves the mountains, I the ocean. The consequence was that this year when we sat down together to fix on a summer resort we disagreed. I am sorry to admit that we quarreled. The end of it all was that Molly said that since I was so unreasonable I could go where I liked; she was going to the mountains. And so she did. I went to the seashore.

I reached my place of rest when a cold northeaster was blowing. The guests in the house where I stopped were huddled together in the sitting room, grumbling at the proprietor for not giving them a fire. I strolled out on to the beach and stood looking on the dreary waste of flying clouds and rolling waters. The only happy thing in sight was a sea gull sailing between both. I went back to the hotel, sat down in my overcoat and smoked—smoked all day, smoked till my nerves were in the condition of the tumbling waters. That night I didn't sleep for two reasons—immoderate smoking and the cold. I slept under a sheet and a light blanket. I couldn't get any more. There was another reason for my insomnia—I was lonesome without Molly, but I would never have admitted it to her. Besides, I pined for the dry mountain air.

The second day was like the first, at least till noon, when I boarded a train and started to join Molly in the mountains. I spent the afternoon trying to think of a reason, not a truthful one, to give her for doing so. I reached her habitation at 10 o'clock at night, alas, to learn that she had gone away from it that morning.

"You see," said the landlord, "we've been having beastly weather here, and your wife got to thinking of the bright sun shining on the sands and the waves, and she said she couldn't stand it here. She must go to you."

Well, there was nothing to do but go to bed and take the train back the next day. But in the morning the sun rose bright and beautiful, gilding the peaks and leaving the valleys in contrasting shadows. The air was crisp and bracing. After all, Molly was right. My obstinacy was melted by the sunshine. I sent her the following telegram:

Am here. You were right. Come back.

About 11 o'clock I received one:

Am here. Will wait for you to come back.

"I wonder," I remarked sotto voce, "if that infernal sun has taken it into his changeable hot head to come out at the seashore as well as here."

What was I to do? What would Molly do? My experience with my dear wife gave me to understand that her reasoning would be something like this: "My husband is a man, and men are all obstinate. I'm not going to give in to him. I'm here, and here I'll stay. If he had been sensible at the outset, this wouldn't have happened." The reader may not understand this last statement, but I do, because I'm used to woman's logic—that is, Molly's logic.

Thus thinking, I took the next train for the seashore, first telegraphing, of course, that I would do so. I struck a change in the weather during the afternoon. The sun went back under the clouds, and by the time I reached the ocean I was greeted by the most dismal sound in the world, a fog horn. At the hotel I found my telegram to Molly (unopened), but not Molly. She had gone to join me in the mountains.

"You see," said the landlord, "the sun rose clear this morning, and the air was very soft. Your wife decided to stay here and telegraphed you. But by 10 o'clock the fog came in, and she went right away."

"It was the fog," I remarked. "Nothing else would have done it."

Well, I was mad. I was mad from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot. I was mad mentally, physically and in my very soul.

"What's the next train for the city?" I growled.

"In an hour."

"Send that trunk back to the station right off—right off," I said; "not a moment's delay."

That night at 10 o'clock I was sitting in my comfortable den at home, with a cold supper and a bottle of ale before me, a cigar ready in a box on the table, when I heard a carriage stop at the front door, then a latchkey turning. I stood on the landing looking downstairs. It was Molly.

"You here!" she said. I could tell from her tone that she was very angry.

"Yes. You too?"

"Of all the stupid, obstinate, incorrigable men I ever knew you are the worst!"

"Are you hungry, dear?"

"Starving!"

"I picked up some cold tongue and other things on my way home. Come up."

She came up (not smiling; oh, no, she didn't smile), but when she had finished half a tongue and drunk some ale she felt better and remarked:

"This is the last summer I'm going to make myself uncomfortable by going away. How nice the house does look!"

"Just so," I remarked, lighting a cigar. "You see, my dear, it wasn't that I was so obstinate, but that the weather was so changeable."

A REWARD OF FAITH.

The Story of a Church Twice Struck by Lightning.

A congregation in a hilly district in Ohio, says the Youth's Companion, bought a small tract of land and erected a church building upon it. Then the question of insurance came up. Mr. Sipes, the wealthiest member, who had contributed more than half the money needed for the new structure, declared that he did not believe in insurance. "This is the Lord's building. He'll take care of it," he said.

His view prevailed, and there was no insurance. In a few weeks the building was struck by lightning and almost totally consumed by fire. Another one was erected, Mr. Sipes contributing the greater portion of the fund as before. This time the demand was almost unanimous that it be insured, but Mr. Sipes again objected on the same ground.

"If it burn down again, brethren," he said, "I'll agree to rebuild it myself."

Again he carried his point. In less than a month the new church was struck by lightning again, and although strenuous efforts were made to save it, the loss was almost total.

"There must be some reason for this, brethren," said Brother Sipes. "I am going to find out what it is."

Thereupon he employed a force of men to sink a shaft on the site of the twice destroyed church. Within a few days a rich vein of ore was found, and the church property was sold for many times the amount needed to buy land in another locality and build again.

"I tell you, brethren," said Brother Sipes, "it pays to trust the Lord. He's a great deal better business manager than anybody in this congregation."

He Was an Expert at Figures.

After an absence of several years a one time cavalier of a lady called on her. He found her in the company of her three children.

"Well, well!" he said. "And how old are they?"

"Johnny," answered the lady, "is seven, Julia is five and Maud is two."

"Dear me!" he cried, alarm in his voice. "Is it possible time flies like that? Who would think that you had been married fourteen years?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Incentive.

"Does your son study Greek in college?"

"Oh, yes. He's very enthusiastic over it."

"I thought he didn't care for languages?"

"He doesn't, as a rule, but next year the football team is to have Greek signals and Harry is trying for the 'leven."—Kansas City Independent.

Tommy Changed His Spot.

Teacher—Can the leopard change his spots? Now, Tommy, answer me! Tommy—Yes, sir; he can. Teacher—Nonsense! How can he? Tommy—Well, sir, when he's tired of sitting in one spot he can change to another, can't he, sir?—Winnipeg Telegram.

A Reproach.

Cook—Lawks! Here's mistress! Quick, into the clothes press!

Soldier Sweetheart—In the clothes press and not in the larder? Mina, and you say you love me.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Lucky, Then.

The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Where Good Work Can be Done.

When the city or State undertakes to nurture and care for waifs and maintain institutions for them it has the colossal task of creating imitative homes along big lines which will be good substitutes for the real domestic life. Here is where much valuable suggestion, legislation and activity is called for, since it has been demonstrated that children from whom the home has been eliminated, while handicapped, may become excellent citizens, useful and worthy individuals. Better the institution as we have it, than some of the homes with which we are acquainted; yet public institutions in the majority of cities are hollow mockeries even as imitation nurseries. If the years of experiment along these lines and the noting of development did not show successful growth, the problem would not be entitled to the study it now involves. Defective as they are, many of these institutions have turned out excellent products. They have not been so bad as to blot out inherited characteristics when good, nor good enough to suppress bad tendencies when inherent; but homes themselves often fail in this. The characteristics acquired from the environment which public charity supplies would seem not the best, yet this cold artificial life is often times tinged with real human color and warm glow through the contact of some good samaritans. Unfortunately it is mostly with poor material that the imitative home has to work. It is only the minority who are well bred and well started. The rest are sickly plants or bad little seedlings sowed promiscuously and coming to light in the shadowed, rank places of life. Against these odds, institutions must work and here the work can be done. When transplanted it is safe to say that the little plants will do better than in their native homes, yet it is only squalor and vice that reconciles one to see the change made, for the most ideal institution can never supply mother's love. Yet, let us not hesitate to continue the improvement of our homes for the homeless on this account for even the divine maternal influence stays not some who stray from the fold. Let us substitute for it love for the Infinite and a wholesome spirit of hope and faith. With this for a spirit permeating the being let discipline come and finally self-reliance and an industrial education. Let there be no idleness to beget wrong-doing and our little charges will become just such citizens as the world is in need of. We have the moulding of these. Let the work be done.

Prescriptions of The Poet-Mayor.

Oh, there's fear up on Olympus,
And shattered hopes are there,
For it was hoped that mortals here
Would make a poet Mayor.
The city of St. Francis seemed transformed to ideal
When Doctor Taylor took the key,
The Graces, all from one to three,
Paid homage, and the Muses glee
Was sung in joyous peal.
Alas! not long it sounded,
For soon 'twas noised about
That rabble still filled up the street,
And discord had got out.
When of the lute the doctor spoke
In terms of classic lore,
His subjects said, "what loot, we pray,
The loot that Pat Calhoun did pay.
Or Glass or Halsey, did you say?"
Alas, the Mayor looked sore.
Some speeches flowery he made;
Few list to rhyme inspiring,
For his voice thundered not
Above the brick-bat's firing.
He could not reach the mob with verse,
They might have paused were it more terse.
Blank verse is so inspiring;
Yet still he hopes by flowery speech
To win the love and votes of each.
To eulogize the Spreckels clan,
To satarize the youthful Dan.
These gifts with law and physic, too,
The body politic should fix,
And quite decide the awful mix.

The coming of the fleet into the waters of our own San Francisco bay was indeed a most inspiring sight and makes us proud of the United States navy. If we think it strange that the fleet has been sent into Pacific waters, let us recall that it is not out of keeping with the active policy of the present administration, which does not believe in sluggish tactics but in the active exercise of all parts of the administrative machinery and its implements. It is well that our commanders should familiarize themselves with present conditions on this side, for this is the fast growing new part of the country whither complications would tend to develop from our new possessions. It is a logical, well advised and provident activity which prompted the big-stacked battle ships hither.

It is said that more druggists own automobiles in Kansas than in any other State in the Union. Kansas being a prohibition State may have something to do with it.

JOB PRINTING Neatly and promptly executed at this office

MAKE THIS UP AT YOUR HOME.

Prepare it at Home by Shaking Ingredients Well in a Bottle.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Croup

Is a violent inflammation of the mucous membranes of the windpipe, which sometimes extends to the larnyx and bronichal tubes and is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It almost always comes on in the night. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and apply Ballard's Snow Liniment externally to the threat. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

A Most Worthy Article.

When an article has been on the market for years and gains friends every year, it is safe to call this medicine a worthy one. Such is Ballard's Hoarhound Syrup. It positively cures coughs and all pulmonary diseases. One of the best known merchants in Mobile, Ala., says "For five years my family has not been troubled with winter coughs. We owe this to Ballard's Horehound Syrup. I know it has saved my children from many sick spells." Sold by Simmons Pharmacy.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

NEW POWER AND ELECTRIC COMPANY.

It Has Been Getting Busy and Has Received 360 Miles of Wire at a Cost of $80,000.

After many vexatious delays the Eel river electric light and power proposition, incorporated as the Snow Mountain Water and Power Company, has recently received 360 miles of wire for its power lines which will run through Mendocino, Napa and Sonoma counties at a cost of $80,000 for the wire alone.

The material for this competing electric power line has already been purchased and the work of erecting the poles is being pushed rapidly forward from the power house in Mendocino county toward this and Napa counties. After the completion of the main line the company will run its feeders for distributing the "juice" into every section of the three counties named where the consumption of power and light will warrant it in doing so. This is the company for which Frank M. Burris, President of the Sonoma Valley Bank, secured the franchise to operate in this county from the Board of Supervisors several months ago.

The Press Democrat of Santa Rosa, in commenting on this big competitive electric lighting and power company, says among other things: "It is understood that the policy of the company is to procure a large consumption and to do this say they will keep the rates down to living prices. They consider that such a policy is not only necessary in order to acquire a large consumption, but as they are looking to a long investment with a fair income, they realize that to get that they must have a large patronage. This is one of the most momentous things that has happened in this section. Electricity is the power and light of the future, and the advent of this enterprise cannot fail to add greatly, not only to the convenience of people, but to the value of property in all the country touched by it. It is understood that the company will ask for other franchises in order to distribute the 'juice' in different sections of the county."

Outside Capital to Improve Sonoma.

Mr. W. B. Austin of Stockton, who lately purchased the Chase home place in this city, has commenced the subdivision of the tract into handsome residence lots. Avenues will be graded, cement sidewalks laid down, ornamental trees planted and other improvements inaugurated that will make the Chase tract one of the most beautiful and desirable residence sites in Sonoma. As a starter and to encourage building on the tract, Mr. Austin will give away five of the lots, the price of which vary between $200 and $350 each.

In another column will be found a prospectus which has been issued by Mr. Austin, which should be read by everbody interested in home-building, as his proposition offers a rare opportunity to secure a fine building lot at small cost.

Another New Business Enterprise..

Mr. W. S Spencer has opened a market on Broadway and will keep it well supplied with fresh fruit and vegetables. Also, all kinds of fish, oysters, crabs, clams, etc. In connection with the market is a free delivery wagon, which will deliver your purchases to all parts of town and valley.

Will Stock the Buena Vista Ranch.

Victor Sartori, the well-known dairyman of Fairville and who recently leased the big Buena ranch near here, was in town several days this week superintending the stocking of the ranch with dairy cattle.

Young Trout for Sonoma Creek.

Fifty thousand young trout will be placed in Sonoma creek by Charles Vogelsang, chief of the State Fish Commission, the latter part of this month. This stream has been stocked several times the past ten or twelve years but without result. The fish were too small and feeble and easily fell prey to the voracious carp, which work their way up stream from tidewater in the vicinity of Embarcadero in quest of trout food and have been caught with hook and line in large numbers as high up the creek as Glen Ellen. Heretofore the trout fry have been transplanted in Sonoma creek in the vicinity of that burg. Had they been placed higher up in the mountains near the headwaters of that stream and the other creeks tributary to it, they would have been out of reach of their enemies, the carp, and every fishing stream in the valley—there are sixteen of them within a radius of ten miles of Sonoma—would be swarming with the speckled beauties to-day.

It is simply a waste of time and money to transplant the young fish in Sonoma creek between tide water and Glen Ellen. Better try the headwaters of Sonoma creek and its numerous tributaries. These streams run cool and clear in deep shady ravines and gorges the year round near their fountain heads and are the natural breeding grounds of the trout, and more than all are inaccessible to the greedy carp.

Petaluma Courier in New Hands.

The Petaluma Courier has recently changed hands, D. W. Ravenscroft, the veteran editor, retiring and giving place to Henry E. Pastor, J. C. Arthur and C. C. Honodel. While wishing the new publishers success we hate to note the retirement of Mr Ravenscroft, who was one of few local newspaper men who was free and fearless in expressing an honest opinion on every public question. Mr. Ravenscroft was never a time-server and as a result he made enemies of men who, had they stopped to consider, might have admired him for a manly and independent spirit which was always tempered with justice through the medium of his caustic pen.

The "Big Stick" Descends on Porter Ashe.

Attorney R. Porter Ashe, brother of Will L. Ashe of Glen Ellen and well-known in this valley, was indicted by the Oliver grand jury of San Francisco last Tuesday afternoon. He is accused of assisting in abducting Fremont Older, editor of the Evening Bulletin, who was hastily arrested on a charge of criminal libel and then spirited away on a Los Angeles express train without due process of law. The indicted attorney, who indignantly denies complicity in the abduction of the editor, belongs to one of the old families of California and stands high in his profession.

Local Railway Activity.

The Northwestern Pacific railroad people have contracted with the Pacific Lumber Company for clearing the redwood timber from the right of way on its extension between Shively and Eel river. All the right of way for the extension has been secured and so soon as it is cleared of the timber by the loggers graders will be put to work. The right of way runs through the Pacific lumber company's domain for six and a half miles and four miles of this is a dense redwood forest of great value. The railroad pays the lumber company for cutting the trees and allows them all the timber.

CITY TRUSTEES IN OCTOBER SESSION.

Full Board Present With Exception of Trustee Wagnon—Bills Passed.

The City Trustees met last Wednesday evening in regular monthly session. They were all in their seats except Trustee Wagnon, who is absent in San Francisco.

The minutes of the several meetings held last month having been read by Clerk Small and approved by the Trustees, the usual monthly bills were allowed and ordered paid as follows:

Sam H. Haven, merchandise	$ 1 00
W. O. Hocker, printing	5 00
F. Dubring, merchandise	26 30
Robert A. Poppe, expenses	5 45
Sonoma Valley Co. electric light	36 40
Jas. H. Albertson, salary	15 00
Mrs. L. V. Emparan, water	15 00
Jos. B Small, assessment work	50 00
H. Castagnasso, hauling gravel	11 00
G. S. Harris, hauling gravel	10 00
Total	$175 15

The electric light contract was continued for another month.

A warrant in the sum of $737.50 was ordered drawn to pay off new city hall bond No. 2 and interest.

The street committee was authorized to expend $50 for graveling the streets where needed.

The plaza and city hall committee were also authorized to procure the necessary tiling for the new City Hall.

The sum of $50 was set aside for paying the difference in the cost of imported cement or such cement as architect Lutgens may recommend for finishing the stone and concrete work on the new City Hall.

No further business coming up for consideration the Board adjourned until next Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Will be Married Sunday.

Hymie Pasch, formerly of this place and a nephew of S. Schocken, will be married to-morrow to Miss Miriam Myers. The wedding will take place in San Jose at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Annie Myers. A large number of invitations have been issued by Mrs. Myers and the wedding will be a swell affair. Mr. Pasch has many friends here who will be pleased to know that he has won one of San Jose's fairest daughters and is to became a Benedict.

Card of Thanks.

A team of horses belonging to me took fright and ran away on last Tuesday afternoon while hauling gravel from the creek bed near the new El Verano bridge. Taking a course which led them past Mr. Alfred Miller's place of business they threatened serious damage to any one unfortunate enough to meet them, which was apparent to Mr. Miller, and by a brave and determined effort on his part their capture was effected before any damage was done.

For his unselfish and courageous action I wish to hereby tender my sincere thanks to Mr. Miller.

L. MOUNER.

Married Wednesday.

Miss Matilda Cleil Marzo and Joseph L. Enfeld were married in St. Francis' church Wednesday morning in the presence of relatives and immediate friends of the young couple. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Leahy. After the nuptial knot had been tied the youthful bride and groom and invited guests partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast at the Tosaeno Hotel, which had been prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Cinci.

After feasting, the happy young couple took their departure amid a shower of rice for Santa Cruz, where they will spend their honeymoon.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

W. B. Austin announces the subdivision of the Chase home place. Now is the time to secure a residence site.

The Chase Home Place.

The Chase home place has been sold to Mr. W. B. Austin of Stockton, California, and he has commenced the subdivision of this beautiful tract into resident lots. It is Mr. Austin's intention to make this subdivision the and he will make every effort to interest parties wishing to build homes. Avenues will be graded through the tract, cement sidewalks will be laid on both sides of the principal avenue, ornamental trees will be planted, and substantial bridges will be constructed over the creek running through the tract.

The Chase home place has been noted for its beautiful trees, which are one of the desirable features in the selection of a resident lot. There will be no farmyards or chicken ranches in this subdivision. Every effort will be made to have the improvements desirable.

Mr. Austin has decided to give five lots free of cost for the purpose of constructing desirable residences, and he will make all reasonable inducements as to prices and terms to any party wishing to build a home in this tract.

That this is a rare opportunity to secure a home site there can be no question, and any one contemplating building will do well to investigate Mr. Austin's offer at once, as it is reasonably certain that this offer will not last long.

Prices of lots in this tract range from $200.00 to $350.00 according to location. Terms can be arranged to suit the purchaser, and the property can be purchased from any real estate agent in Sonoma, or through Mr. Austin's authorized agent, George E. Crane, care of B. F. Campbell, Sonoma, California.

A MAN AND A MOB.

The Way Lyon Playfair Handled the Lancashire Strikers.

During the great labor riots in Lancashire about the middle of the last century the ready resources of Lyon Playfair saved one of the only two mills which remained open at the time. The government was anxious that these two should continue in action, and supplied the workmen engaged with muskets. But a great force of strikers advanced upon one of the two, and it was obvious that the day was lost. The mob meant to wreck the place. Playfair, who was a friend of the owner, appeared in haste among them, keeping the proprietor out of sight. He put the case frankly to the strikers. The gates of the mill were closed, but the numbers of the strikers made them irresistible; hence it was of no use their all going in and wrecking the place. Let a few of them enter the premises, remove the plugs from the boilers, and thus, without damage to the works, secure their stoppage. Even a disorderly mob, bravely met by a man of courage and tact, will listen. So did this one. Playfair's proposition sounded fair, but might not treachery lie behind it?

He immediately put their doubts at rest by offering himself as hostage. He would accompany the deputation while the others kept guard over the works. The men agreed, and Playfair strolled off with the men chosen. Together they went to the boilers and withdrew the plugs. This stopped the works, but did no other damage. While thus engaged Playfair was able to listen to the story of the leaders, and found many of their demands most reasonable and such that afterward it was possible readily to concede them. The little party returned from their innocent wrecking and found the mob honorably preserving order. The scientist gave them a couple of sovereigns with which the buy food, and they returned him three times three in cheers. There remained only one other mill to close, that at Clitheroe, and upon this the strikers now marched. Again they were thwarted, but this time not by pacific means, but by the might of the military.—St. James' Gazette.

SUPERSTITIOUS.

General Grant believed in dreams.

Nelson, the English naval hero, always carried a horseshoe with him into battle.

Von Moltke, the hardy old German general, would never begin a battle on a Friday.

Prince Bismarck of Germany would never sit down to a dinner with thirteen at the table.

President Davis of the Confederacy believed that the presence of children brought him luck.

James G. Blaine would never turn back to re-enter his home even if he had forgotten something.

The father of Nicholas II. of Russia guided his actions by the advice of an American spirit medium.

Admiral Farragut says he used to be guided by a still, small voice which told him what to do in battles.

The ameer of Afghanistan, the sultans of Morocco and Zanzibar and the khedive of Egypt all maintain official astrologers.

A Timely Present.

A certain colored gentleman recently saluted a large colored lady of the Amazonian type in the following language:

"Yuh's lookin' mighty fascinatin' this evenin', Sal."

Sal hauled off and knocked him down. Then, looking him out of an inclination to get up, she said, "Now, yuh jest lay thar till I goes an' finds out what dat word 'fascinatin'' means!"

Next day the aforesaid colored gentleman presented the said Sal with a copy of Webster's Dictionary, saying, "I might want ter salute yuh ag'in, so jes please look up the meanin' of some of these heah complimentation terms."

Sal promptly refused to accept the present upon the ground that one would have to know the word in order to look it up.—New York Times.

Gowns From the Undertaker's.

"You'll be astonished when I tell you," said a man who knows, "but it's a fact that dressmakers sometimes send to a fashionable undertaker for a gown when they have a hurry order. There was a time when undertakers carried only shrouds in stock, but in this age of luxury the big concerns have a line of what are known in the trade as 'ladies' fine burial dresses.' Such materials as henrietta, pongee, faille and chiffon taffeta are used for these dresses, and they are made in the prevailing style. The dressmakers know this, and if they can't find what they want in one of the regular shops, they don't hesitate to call on the undertaker."—New York Sun.

As He Viewed It.

Stranger (in small town)—I saw by the papers that a boy lives here who was born with no legs and no arms. I am a dime museum manager, and I should like to find him.

Citizen—No use hunting him up. His parents won't exhibit him.

"They won't? Well, it beats all what blessings fall to folks as can't appreciate 'em."—Kansas City Independent.

Never Touched Him.

Nodd—Would you mind returning the book you borrowed of me last year?

Todd—Some one borrowed it of me and hasn't returned it yet. Did you ever see anything like the way some people act about a thing like that? They have no sense of honor.—Life.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for 10 Years Without Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have also been subject to croup, and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequaled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune only $9 for the two newspapers.

A Quick and Safe Remedy for Bowel Complaints.

Twenty years ago Mr. Geo. W. Brock discovered that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was a quick and safe cure for bowel complaints "During all of these years," he says, "I have used it and recommended it many times and the results have never yet disappointed me." Mr. Brock is publisher of the Aberdeen, Md., Enterprise. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

How to Cure a Cold.

The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Daily Examiner and Index-Tribune $9 a year for both papers.

Quinsey, Sprains and Swellings Cured.

"In November, 1901, I caught cold and had the quinsy. My throat was swollen so I could hardly breathe. I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief in a short time. In two days I was all right," says Mrs. L. Cousins, Otterburn, Mich. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment and is especially valuable for sprains and swellings. For sale by L. S. Simmons.
